

In today's newsletter, we continue our countdown of The Top 10 Reasons Why Your Orchid Won't Rebloom...

In yesterday's newsletter, we talked about the importance of recreating a "dry winter" for certain types of orchids.

Remember, certain orchids (like Dendrobiums) require a dry period of several weeks during the winter months in order to "trigger" new bud formation...

Okay, without further delay let's continue where we left off:

The Top 10 Reasons Why Your Orchid Won't Rebloom

REASON #8

Pests & Diseases....

If your orchid is plagued with any sort of pest or disease, then you have what we call a "stressed" plant on your hands.

And just like when you or your family gets sick, your orchid is using EVERY LAST OUNCE of energy to fight off those foreign bugs!...

So to get your orchid to bloom again, the first thing you need to do is nurse your plant back to health :-)

The topic of pests & disease naturally deserves more space than I can give it in this issue of your newsletter. (And we'll be talking about some effective ways to deal with a few common pests in a later newsletter.)

But in the meantime, here are a few signs to watch out for:

-Yellow spots, holes, or "nibble marks" on the leaves or flowers

-Dark, soft, and rotting bulb/roots

Do you see any of these signs on your orchid?

Because if you've been having trouble getting your orchid to rebloom, and you SUSPECT there might be something plaguing your plant...

...then THAT'S where you should focus your attention.

Orchid pests come in many shapes and sizes. And some of the more common problems include Aphids, Thrips, Mealy Bugs, & Spider Mites - just to name a few...

If your orchid needs IMMEDIATE help, you should know that we have an entire chapter in our book devoted to fighting off orchid pests & disease.
